8 Americans Die In Virgin Isles Holdup

CHARLOTTE, AMALIE, St. Thomas, V.I. (AP) — Police hunted today for four or five gunmen wearing green fatigues who machine-gunned eight Americans to death during a robbery in the golf clubhouse of a Rockefeller resort in the Virgin Islands.

Officials would not release the names of four of the victims, but Lt. Gov. David Maas said they were believed to be tourists from the U.S. mainland.

A spokesman for the Rockefeller family in New York said two of the victims were tentatively identified as Pat Tarbert, a girl who worked in the club's golf shop, and John Gulliver, a groundskeeper. He said the other two victims were electricians.

The gunmen opened fire late Wednesday afternoon at the Fountain Valley Golf Club on the island of St. Croix, about 50 miles south of St. Thomas, Maas said. Seven persons died at the scene and another at a hospital.

Ronald Toakin, the territory's attorney general, said there were four or five men in green fatigues using automatic weapons. The killers looted their victims' pockets and cleaned out the clubhouse cash drawer before escaping into the overgrown hills around the course.

Gov. Melvin H. Evans was called back to the islands from Hilton Head, S.C., where he had been named vice chairman of the Southern Governor's Conference.

"This is absolutely the worst thing that has ever happened in the Virgin Islands," said Maas, who was acting governor until Evans' return. "These men will be caught."

About 50 police were searching for the gunmen.

Auditors Plan U.S.-Soviet Wheat Probe

Advertising House Killed By House As 'Half-Loaf' Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has rejected even a half-a-loaf version of legislation to finance advertising campaigns urging Americans to eat more wheat, while a congressman says auditors plan to probe the massive U.S.-Soviet wheat deal.

A wheat industry advertising ad promotion bill, which critics claimed would give bakers a new reason to raise bread prices, was killed by the House Wednesday after the legislation's opponents inserted a sweeping referendum provision. Meanwhile, Rep. Pierre S. duPont, R-Del., announced the General Accounting Office, audit arm for Congress, agreed to investigate whether the U.S.-Soviet wheat sale "may have created a windfall for financial speculators and exporters may have excessively benefited from continued government subsidies."

Under the bill which the House killed 235 to 122, council would have been set up to administer a promotional campaign and to collect assessments in the wheat industry, with federal backing for an effort to show Americans the value of eating wheat products.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., called the bill ill-timed and costly, and persuaded the House to accept his referendum amendment which he said would provide a trigger for the promotional program to take effect.

Through the Findley mechanism, the program would have had to be approved by at least two-thirds of the wheat producers voting in the referendum and by processors and the end-product makers handling half the total market.

This amounted to what the bill's backers considered at least a half-loaf approach.

To finance the ad campaign, the legislation called for a one-cent levy for each 100 pounds of processed wheat, with the annual rate eventually rising to two and one-half cents per hundredweight.

Many Courts Clear Cases, O'Neill Says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Sixty per cent of Ohio's trial judges had their criminal court dockets current as of Sept. 1, Chief Justice C. William O'Neill said today.

O'Neill said it exceeded a drive he announced last January for 50 per cent of the judges to have their dockets current by Labor Day.

In Montgomery County, six of the seven judges brought their dockets current and in Cuyahoga, eight of 25 judges have up to date dockets.

O'Neill said 53 of the 88 counties were now caught up in back cases, with 107 of 181 Common Pleas court judges having current criminal dockets.

"It now appears to be within reach to have all of the criminal dockets of this state current by a year from now," O'Neill said.

"This is a far better record than I ever thought we could achieve when we began this work with the enormous backlog the judges faced in so many counties," he added.

He said persons committing crimes "now know that once they have been apprehended punishment will be 'swiftly imposed.'"

"This knowledge should be an important factor in the reduction of crime and should contribute greatly to an increase in respect for the law and judicial system by all of the citizens of this state," he said.

Viet Reds Open Massive New Wave Of Assaults

AT MEMORIAL SERVICE—Israelis with a black-crepe covered Israeli flag sit in Munich Olympic Stadium during memorial service for 11 Israeli team members who died after they were taken hostage by Arab terrorists. A crowd of 80,000 attended the memorial services.

Seek Arabs In Munich Slayings

MUNICH (AP) — West German police hunted for 15 more Arabs today and pressed an investigation into the airfield killing of nine Israeli hostages on Tuesday.

Bavarian state police said the 15 were suspected of being accomplices in the planning and execution of the Arab terrorist attack Tuesday that killed two other members of the Israeli Olympic team and culminated in the airfield shootout.

Five of the terrorists and a West German policeman also were killed at the airfield. A German helicopter pilot was seriously wounded. Three of the terrorists were captured slightly wounded.

The three captives were identified as Ibrahim Badran, 20, Abd Es Kadir El Dnawy and Samer Mohamed Abdulah, both 22. They claimed to be students and said they last lived in Jordan and Syria.

A Bavarian court official said they faced multiple charges of murder. They were being interrogated at an undisclosed location.

The court had until Thursday night to issue formal charges. The maximum penalty for premeditated murder is life imprisonment, there being no death penalty in West Germany.

The Olympic competition, suspended 12 hours after the first Israeli was killed in the Olympic Village, resumed late Wednesday with big crowds. But at least four Dutch and 12 Norwegian team members decided to abandon further competition.

Roundtown

PICKAWAY County Superintendent of Schools Ed Martin has received his commission as a Kentucky Colonel. Rumor has it he is thinking of starting his own chicken franchise.

WALNUT Township trustees have asked the Pickaway County Board of Elections to include a half mill tax levy for a one year period to be collected this year on the November ballot.

Reason stated on voter ballots will be to meet current operating expenses. But that is misleading.

The trustees are seeking the additional funds to purchase land and relocate the Walnut Township house, their traditional meeting place and the Walnut West precinct house.

The building is located adjacent from the Walnut Twp. school just off the intersection of the Ashville-Fairfield Road and Circleville-Winchester Road and creates a traffic hazard.

Three people were killed in a collision at the intersection last month.

Nixon Pledges No Increase In Taxes By Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican congressional leaders emerged from a meeting with President Nixon today and relayed a presidential pledge that "there will be no tax increase proposed by this administration."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and House GOP Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan, said they assumed when Nixon said "this administration" he meant there would be no tax increase proposed to the next Congress.

"No time limit was discussed," said Ford.

At a White House news conference following their two-hour meeting with Nixon, the two GOP leaders continued the drumfire of Republican criticism of Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern's proposals.

Scott said what he called McGovern's "scheme a day" proposals would result in a $100-billion increase in the federal budget and would require a 100 per cent tax increase.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, re-election campaign director Clark MacGregor and 10 other Republican members of Congress joined in what Scott called "a very relaxed session" in the Cabinet Room.

After Scott declared that "a vote for McGovern is a vote for spending, a vote for higher spending, a vote for higher unemployment and higher everything," Ford reported that "the President said this morning there will be no tax increase proposed by this administration."

Ford added that "the President was very clear ... no tax increase is contemplated by this administration."

The administration has been studying the possibilities of a value-added tax—a form of a national sales tax—but the GOP leaders said this and other possible tax reform measures were not discussed.

McGovern Loses Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another fissure opened in Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign organization today with the abrupt departure of Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., who headed a national voter registration drive.

Thompson's politely worded letter of resignation ended a month long running battle he had conducted with other top campaign officials over control of the drive.

Thompson aides said when he took over the registration drive Aug. 4 he had McGovern's assurance that he would have total control of it, including the financing of the operation.

"That's where it broke down," said one of Thompson's assistants, who named Gary Hart, McGovern's campaign manager, as the chief reason for Thompson's resignation.

"It had reached the point where he had to decide whether he wanted to spend every day on the telephone arguing over money with Hart," the aide said.

the predominant view.

Burger's plea, sounded before bar and judicial groups and the public at large, has won for the court a handful of additional law clerks and administrators, an extra few dollars from a sometimes skeptical Congress.

But is the court overworked? Douglas, in a rare CBS-TV interview, suggested it is not. He agreed with Burger that the actual number of cases reaching the high court is on the rise—from 1,800 a year three decades ago up to about 4,200 currently.

The more important point, Douglas went on, is that "we're actually hearing and deciding fewer cases now than when we were when I went on the court." This means more appeals than ever before are being tossed out without full consideration.

Douglas, the senior justice, who took his seat upon appointment of President Franklin D.

Roosevelt in 1939, said the court still has nine men, but the selective process has changed. And that's not all, he said.

"The judges have changed, the idea of what is important has changed in the minds of the judges—a highly selective consideration."

"Is this case fit to take—should we take it and so on? And we take fewer and fewer."

"When I went on the court we sat six days a week. Under (former Chief Justice Earl) Warren we sat five days a week, a conference on Friday."

"And now it looks as if our trend will be to three days a week, with a conference on Saturday. The job takes about four days a week."

Burger has signaled Congress that he would welcome legislative action to cut down the kinds of cases that can be brought to the court.

Douglas went along—to a point.

One of the reasons courts are congested, he said, "is that we as a people had a great propensity to make everything that somebody objects to on some moral ground a crime. And a lot of the stuff that's going on in our courts involve only people but no victims."

By this he said he meant crimes like vagrancy, drunk-

District Town Falls To Tanks Near Que Son

SAIGON (AP) — The 5½-month Communist offensive surged to a new high point today with a tank-led assault on a district town south of the Que Son Valley and a sapper assault on a South Vietnamese divisional headquarters in the Mekong Delta only 40 miles below Saigon.

Field reports said 22 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 77 wounded in the sapper attack, carried out by a small Viet Cong and North Vietnamese unit at the Vinh Nhi base camp near Highway 4, which connects the delta with Saigon.

At Tien Phuoc district town, only 12 miles west of the vital north-south Highway 1 and 10 miles south of Que Son, battles raged in the streets throughout the day.

It was the first time enemy tanks were used in the area, which is also 40 miles south of Da Nang.

Reports from the embattled town were confused and contradictory, but at one point in the afternoon contact was lost between the district headquarters in Tien Phuoc and the province headquarters in Tam Ky, 12 miles northeast of the town.

Officers in the field said an estimated five enemy battalions — more than 1,000 troops — supported by Tanks were attacking Tien Phuoc from the northwest and the northeast. They said mortar and recoilless rifle fire was hitting government positions at the rate of four rounds a minute.

The South Vietnamese threw hundreds of reinforcements into the battle for the town, which

Seek Federal Aid In Cincy Traffic Jams

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati's monumental weekend traffic jams have led Rep. Donald D. Clancy, R-Ohio, to ask U.S. Transportation Secretary John Volpe for help.

Clancy says he is asking Volpe to provide ideas for possible solutions to the traffic backups that occur each weekend as thousands of motorists traverse the Brent Spence Bridge between Ohio and Kentucky.

The bridge crosses the Ohio River and links the two states near downtown Cincinnati.

According to Clancy, "the Labor Day weekend traffic jam ... Monday night was new proof of the seriousness of the situation and the need for action."

Clancy said he is asking Volpe to meet with him and other interested Ohio and Kentucky officials to discuss how "to get the help we need so desperately."

Clancy warned that the traffic situation on busy Interstate 75 leading onto the bridge can only get worse with Cincinnati Bengals football and a possible baseball World Series on tap for Cincinnati this fall.

Hearings On Abrams Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate committee hearings on the nomination of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams as Army chief of staff and a related probe of unauthorized air strikes against North Vietnam have bogged down in procedural problems.

"There's no change in the plan to do this as quickly as possible," said John Goldsmith, a spokesman for the Senate Armed Services Committee. "There just has not been enough time for the mechanics of the thing to be completed."

At the prodding of Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, the committee agreed to examine the circumstances surrounding unauthorized air strikes carried out by U.S. bombers against North Vietnam targets from January through March of this year.

Maj. Gen. John D. Lavelle, former commander of the 7th U.S. Air Force in Vietnam, has acknowledged ordering at least 20 unauthorized strikes.

Hughes intends to examine the Pentagon's command and control procedures and wants to determine what other officials may have been involved in ordering the strikes and concealing them from the public.

The strikes were disclosed after an Air Force sergeant wrote about them in a letter to Hughes.

The committee probe may touch on President Nixon's nomination of Abrams because he was the U.S. commander in Vietnam and Lavelle's superior at the time of the unauthorized strikes.

Ohio Firms Are Sued For Millions

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two Ohio firms are charged in a $15 million damage suit filed in U.S. District Court here by a trustee in bankruptcy for a bankrupt suburban Louisville, Ky., firm.

The suit, filed by the St. Matthews Pulp Co., alleges that the Black Clawson Co., Middletown, Ohio, was to produce a dry solvent system for the plant's use.

That system, the suit says, was to have been developed by Katzen Associates of Cincinnati, co-defendants.

St. Matthews, however, contends the system failed to operate as warranted, thus resulting in financial losses which led to the Kentucky plant's bankruptcy.

Damages totaling $10 million are asked from Black and Clawson, and $5 million is asked from Katzen Associates.

Opened in 1969, the St. Matthews plant was a manufacturing facility for reclaiming waste paper.

Reds Failing, Porter Says

PARIS (AP) — The United States told the Communists today their military and political efforts in South Vietnam have failed and urged them to accept a cease-fire.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter said at the 158th session of the Paris peace talks: "You have incurred terrible losses but you have not broken South Vietnam's will or capacity to resist you. The Viet Cong countercharged that it is the United States and South Vietnam that have failed politically and militarily."

Porter also asked Hanoi to abandon "the transparent fiction that North Vietnamese forces remain within your country's boundaries." Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, chief Viet Cong negotiator, said the Vietnamization program "conceived after the failure of a highly Americanized war of aggression" now is "going bankrupt irretrievably."

Mrs. Binh again rejected President Nixon's May 8 cease-fire proposal "as an ultimatum demanding that the Vietnamese people accept the colonialist conditions posed by the United States."

Meat Price Increase Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council today ordered a close watch on retail meat prices in the nation's food chains and urged the Price Commission to consider tighter moves to bring retail prices down faster after wholesale prices decline.

Donald Rumsfeld, director of the council, disclosed that he had telegraphed the largest food retailers in the nation Wednesday, telling them that retail beef prices are still too high. He said he has ordered the Internal Revenue Service to monitor about 100 of the larger food chains.

Rumsfeld said in his telegram that the gap in August between the carcass price of beef and the retail price was about 37 cents per pound compared with 28.4 cents in August a year ago.

"There is no precedent for the current gap between wholesale beef price levels and the prices being charged by much of the retail food industry," he said.

"Retail beef prices must be reduced."

Jews Warned Of Bomb Plot

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's government warned today it has received information that Jews in West Germany may be the targets of mailed bombs this weekend, during the Rosh Hashanah — the Jewish new year.

An Interior Ministry spokesman said the German government warned national security authorities and West Germany's Central Council of Jews it has received word that terrorists plan mailing bombs to Jews in this country in packages and letters.

He did not elaborate.

Good Samaritan Under Arrest

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Eugene Schmidt, 58, of Geneva was photographed after trying to rescue two men in a plane crash last weekend. The picture led to his arrest Wednesday on a warrant charging him with conversion.

Schmidt was recognized by John Petal, manager of Wings Athletic Club in Cleveland, when he saw the picture in a newspaper. Schmidt is charged with taking $457 from the club while he worked there as a part-time bartender last August.

Schmidt and two other men made an unsuccessful attempt to rescue the pilot and passenger of a small plane which crashed near Geneva last Sunday.

Stock List On Downside

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved into a third straight day of losses today, amid slow trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 2.04 to 961.39. Declines held a 615-to-450 edge over advances on the Big Board, with 1,483 issues exchanged.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,400 common stocks was off .16 to 60.65. At the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index was down .02 to 26.52.

"The buyers have kind of stepped aside," said Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co. "Part of it is the ongoing spiral in short-term interest rates. Part of it is the Munich incident."

Today's losses were not as bad as those on Wednesday, when the Dow industrials sagged almost six points to close at 963.43. Analysts said two bright factors had entered the picture this morning—auto sales at near-record levels in August, and an increase in second-quarter housing starts.

10 Israelis Flown Home For Burial

JERUSALEM (AP) — Ten Israeli sportsmen returned home Thursday from the Olympic Games, their bullet-riddled bodies in coffins wrapped in Star of David flags.

The body of the 11th Israeli victim of the Munich massacre, weightlifter David Berger, was flown by the U.S. Air Force to his former home in Cleveland, Ohio, for burial Friday.

The Israeli El Al jetliner carrying the wooden caskets landed at heavily guarded Lod airport, target of two previous terrorist attacks.

The bodies were hoisted onto military command cars to await a memorial ceremony by the leaders of the Jewish state, which Premier Golda Meir was not attending because of the death a few hours earlier of her sister, Shana Kreingold.

Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Alon, substituting for Mrs. Meir, assailed the "untouchable sect of extremist Arabs who have made murder their cause, who have assassinated the cream of our sportsmen and the Olympic spirit itself . . ."

The Israeli leader appealed to the free world to "prevent these men of terror running amok . . . You can prevent them from entering your countries and root them from their hideouts."

Indiana Link To Freeway Uncompleted

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A new section of the so-called Circle Freeway has been opened, but officials in Washington say Indiana's portion of the system designed to relieve heavy traffic conditions around Cincinnati may be delayed for a time.

A 2.8-mile section of Interstate 275 in northwestern Hamilton County was officially dedicated Wednesday.

When completed, the Circle Freeway will loop around Cincinnati and through eastern Indiana and northern Kentucky.

Work is underway on the portion in Kentucky, but a spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget in Washington said Wednesday that funds for the Indiana segment may not be forthcoming soon.

"We could not provide more funds for Indiana without doing it for the rest of the 50 states," the spokesman said.

"If Indiana wanted to complete that (three-mile) segment," he said, "it could do it by giving it high priority in its present apportionment of funds."

The OMB statement came on the heels of complaints by R. H. Harrell, Indiana state highway director, that the government has restricted Indiana's interstate highway spending for the new fiscal year to $68.9 million.

Ban Judge From Cases

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court today ordered Hamilton County Domestic Relations Court Judge George S. Heitzler to hear no cases in his court until it rules upon a recommendation that he be suspended indefinitely from the practice of law.

The Supreme Court set oral arguments in the case for Oct. 10.

Heitzler has until Sept. 21 to file his objections to a report made by the Supreme Court Board of Commissioners on Grievances and Discipline.

The high court emphasized it was not passing on the merits or recommendations of the board by ruling that Heitzler may not handle any judicial duties until the court gives its decision.

The board recommended that Heitzler be indefinitely suspended because "over an extended period of time he has displayed continuing indifference to the canons of judicial ethics as a proper guide and reminder for judges."

District Town

(Continued from Page 1) had been defended by one battalion of militiamen and one regular infantry battalion — about 1,000 men in all. However, field informants said not all the reinforcements had been able to link up.

Low cloud cover limited allied air support but American helicopter gunships destroyed two Soviet-built PT-76 tanks that were spotted Wednesday about two miles northwest of the town, sources reported.

Fierce fighting was reported earlier at the airstrip on the outskirts of Tien Phuoc, which has been under heavy pressure.

The sources said heavy enemy fire was hitting Tien Phuoc from Hill 211, a 600-foot promontory overlooking the town from the northeast. It was captured by Communist forces on Wednesday.

Ground Scanning Pact

An effortless manifestation of good neighborliness that is an example of how both countries can profit by shared knowledge has been entered into by the United States and Canada.

Canada will take part, with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, in the direct reception and analysis of data transmitted by remote-sensing satellites.

The photographs beamed to earth will be useful in the detection of mineral and oil deposits, in geological mapping, in showing the formation and movement of sea ice as well as effluents from power and manufacturing plants. Also soil moisture, vegetation changes for agricultural and forestry planning, and in other benefits.

The U.S. will make the analysis and interpretive codes available free of charge, and Canada will be responsible for reproducing and distributing the data to such purchasers as government agencies, universities and resource-development companies. The only obligation upon Canada will be to build its own receiving and interpreting facilities at a cost estimated at $25 million over a four-year period. That cost will be amortized partly by the sale of information.

Canada will track the satellites over Canadian territory from a station at Prince Albert, Sask., relaying the data to a ground control center at Ottawa. The whole country will be covered except for that part of the arctic north of 82 degrees and with the exception of the Atlantic seaboard.

For this area, data will be received by a nearby U.S. station, and the tapes will be sent to Canada for processing. The project will complement Canada's own topographical mapping and provide a valued service at no cost to the U.S.

Sound On Wheels

Cars of the future are being planned not only as the safest and cleanest-running gas buggies ever produced, but undoubtedly the most melodious. After the 1973 models come out if your car's sound equipment is restricted to a horn it will be terribly dated.

Some of the synopated equipment already is available. Bells ring if the seat belts are not fastened, alarms go off if the lights inadvertently are left on, and an inoffensive beep sounds if the engine is started with a door open.

But this year at least one manufacturer is offering a wider range of orchestration. A buzzer will alert a forgetful driver who opens his door while the key is in the ignition. Should anyone fool with the trunk or car doors without first tripping a hidden switch, the horn will blow.

With all of these, sufficient components will be on hand for the enterprising youth who will accept the challenge to wire his car's sound system to his twin stereo speakers. The result may not be symphonic but it should be effective in clearing the road.

No Better, No Worse

It was meant to be a mark of accomplishment, but the statement by the head of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee on his group's effectiveness could be taken several ways. Sam Archibald, executive director of the committee, said:

"We've been able to keep the political sewage to the level that it has been for many years."

In view of the fact the committee has been in business 19 years, maintaining the status quo on political sewage all that time does not seem like progress. Not when one remembers the depths to which political slime has been known to wallow.

Of course, halting a slide into a bottomless pit is not an easy task.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The commercial giants of the nation's beer garden are busily engaged in expansion programs which reflect an increasing domination of the industry by a shrinking handful of breweries.

Despite years of government effort to preserve competition, small breweries continue to be left behind in a flood of expensive advertising and low-priced brands from the corporate giants.

A recent research report predicts five major brewers — St. Louis' Anheuser-Busch, Milwaukee's Schlitz, Milwaukee's Pabst, Denver's Coors and Milwaukee's Miller — will represent 76 per cent of U.S. production capacity by 1980, compared with 49.5 per cent in 1970.

The fiscal ability of big breweries to equip new plants has helped them absorb markets abandoned by dying firms. The country's operating breweries numbered 750 in 1925, and only 140 by 1970.

Busch, Schlitz and Pabst, the nation's biggest three brewers, are pacing the trend of plant expansion.

Typical of those at the other end of the scale is the 124-year-old Lithia brewery of West Bend, Wis., whose 2-employee production is being transferred to a brewery in Eau Claire, Wis.

"It is a case of competition just being too heavy," Lithia Vice President Henry Dheim said. "It is hard to compete with the prices of the big boys' secondary brands and their heavy advertising."

Robert Marotz, president of the Wisconsin State Brewers Association, said major breweries may compete fiercely among themselves, but are not eager to wipe out less competitive minor plants.

Local breweries which fail, he said, "say it is because of strong competition from the nationals. This is probably true. The item of competition is always going to exist."

"But the basic feeling of large-er breweries is not to put any one out of business," Marotz said. "You run into trouble from the government when you're left alone in the field."

Schlitz, the nation's second-biggest brewer, demonstrates the weight of plant expansion. Beginning with a lone Milwaukee brewery in the 1940s, Schlitz has opened breweries in New York, California, Kansas City, Florida, Honolulu, Texas, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Busch, with breweries in St. Louis and eight other cities, leads national production, tapping 24.3 million of the United States' 126.4 million barrels in 1971.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

My fiancée had her spleen removed when she was 16 years old following an accident. She is in perfect health, but we both wonder how much an important part of the body can be removed without eventual difficulty.

Mr. E.R., S.C.

Dear Mr. R.: It is amazing that such a vital organ can be removed without disrupting the normal functioning of the body. The spleen, which is about six inches long and four inches wide, lies in the abdomen underneath the rib cage on the left side.

The functions of the spleen are numerous. It is involved in the manufacture of red and white blood cells. It plays a role in the destruction of red cells that have exhausted their function. Bacteria that have invaded the bloodstream pass through the spleen and are captured and destroyed.

The spleen can, under unusual circumstances, hoard a large quantity of blood that is released when a special body need occurs.

It is involved in the manufacture of substances important to blood-clotting. It is said that certain antibodies against infections are present in the spleen.

How, then, can such an important organ be removed without permanent danger to the rest of the body?

The infinite wisdom of Nature has provided for other organs to take over a defective or absent organ. For example, the bone marrow may carry most of the burden and produce blood cells and other blood ingredients. A group of remarkable cells, part of the reticulo-endothelial system, also take over a great part of the spleen's function.

There is no reason to be concerned about the absence of a spleen.

My younger brother has a blood pressure of 175 over 80. His doctor says that although this is high for his age (17) he should continue in physical education in school.

Do you think that wrestling would be too strenuous for him?

Mrs. S. K. R., Ind.

Dear Mrs. R.: You can be certain that if there were any danger in exercising or sports of any kind your brother's doctor would have established safe limits for him.

Occasionally, young people have a sudden elevation of blood pressure during the stress of a physical examination. This temporary rise of blood pressure may not be related to any underlying disease.

It would be psychologically unwise to impose restrictions on your brother if the elevation in blood pressure were a transient one. His doctor undoubtedly will check his blood pressure at repeated intervals to be sure that there is no danger in his physical activity.

NEW YORK (AP) — Re-marks a doctor's secretary gets tired of hearing:

"Do I get 20 per cent off if I pay his fee in cash right now?"

"What do you work for a married doctor for, Maude? If I was a pretty single girl like you, I'd get a job with a doctor who was single."

"Could I please have the key to the ladies' room, miss?"

"Maude, will you sneak me in to see the doctor at the very first chance? My husband's double-parked outside waiting to take me to the movie."

"I've been waiting over an hour now. I thought the reason the doctor started evening hours was so patients wouldn't have to sit around half their lives in his office in order to see him."

"If I have to go without my dinner much longer, I won't need to see a doctor. I'll need an undertaker."

"All right, Johnny, I'm telling you for the last time. If you don't stop pulling your sister's hair, I won't let him give you a lollipop when he sees us."

"I've read all the National Geographic magazines about the Spanish-American War and

Big Reversal

By JEFFERY HART

When George McGovern's first set of economic proposals crashed in flames, the nominee bailed out and hurried back to the drawing board with his economic advisers to design another model. The other day, in a speech before an audience of Wall Street securities analysts, he revealed the new creation.

Startlingly enough, the new model is completely different from the old one—it rests upon different premises altogether, and resembles the old model in virtually no important feature.

The old model depended on raising taxes drastically in the over-$12,000 categories. The new one, in contrast, promises to raise money by taxing capital gains as if they were ordinary income. This proposal, of course, represents a 180 degree reversal of course since last May, when McGovern took a full-page ad in the Wall Street Journal to deny, among other things, that he was contemplating a change in the tax rules for capital gains.

So drastically does the new model differ from the old one, in fact, that questions are bound to arise about the intellectual coherence of Sen. McGovern's approach to policy-making. Still, here's the latest contraption. But will it fly?

1) Do the proposed sources of revenue cover McGovern's proposed expenditures? Here, as in the old model—amazingly enough—McGovern appears to flunk the back-of-the-envelope test.

McGovern says he can raise some $22 billion by closing tax loopholes, principally the capital gains preferences mentioned above. He also proposes to cut military spending by $30 billion plus to produce a total of $54 billion in new revenues. Setting aside the serious question of whether any such amount could thus be raised, let us proceed with McGovern's own figures.

He says that individual income taxes on salaries and wages would not go up by "one penny." He then proposes to spend $39 billion on job creation, welfare reform and property tax relief, leaving him with $15 billion in "change" from the $54 billion.

But what about the other new programs McGovern is supporting? The new model says nothing about the health insurance plan proposed by Sen. Kennedy and supported by McGovern. This alone would require $57 billion in new revenue. And what about the rest of the McGovern-supported proposals: veterans' benefits, revenue sharing, guarantees for small businesses against bankruptcy, 100 per cent farm parities, school spending increases and so on? Is McGovern dropping his support for all of these, or does he propose to finance them by deficit spending? The weird suspicion begins to arise that neither McGovern nor his Harvard-MIT economists can, in fact, add.

2) A more speculative question rises about the effect McGovern's capital-gains proposal would have on the formation of capital and therefore on the functioning of the economy. McGovern puts it this way: "Money made by money should be taxed at the same rate as money made by men." But the lower tax on capital gains is designed to encourage investment. Would its removal cause potential investors to spend their money in other ways, on immediate consumption, for example? McGovern's slogan does not suggest that this issue has been faced, let alone resolved.

3) Demagogically at least, the new model seems superior to the old one. Instead of taxing the middle class out of existence—a politically disastrous idea—McGovern now zeroes in on the minority who invest their surplus funds. But whether this will make up for all the evident deficiencies of the scheme and permit the new model to fly politically remain highly dubious.

NEW YORK (AP) — The terror at the Olympic Village is over. And so is the day of frantic behind-the-scenes battling by the three major American networks to cover the story with the Space Age sphere that lets them say, "Live by satellite from Munich."

The bloody attack by Palestinian terrorists on the Israeli quarters at the Olympic Village—Building 31—produced a tour de force in coverage by the American Broadcasting Co., which had been using the satellite all week for live broadcasts of the Olympic Games.

ABC's Jim McKay, broadcasting from the network's office a bare 500 yards from Building 31, was a particular model of restraint and quiet, low-key reporting under intense pressure.

The pressure wasn't the story alone. It was a network battle back in New York to share satellite time with ABC, which had reserved use of the system for its regular Olympic coverage before Tuesday's tragedy began.

By sheer luck, the Columbia Broadcasting System had reserved the satellite the day before for use between 1 p.m. and 3:40 p.m. Tuesday.

And at 12:58 p.m., McKay and his colleagues at ABC—Howard Cosell, and Peter Jennings—had to surrender use of the satellite to CBS, which made the most of its time with a comprehensive one-hour report, "Terror at the Olympics."

NBC was blanked out on initial live coverage of the Palestinian attack, which ended with 17 dead.

The most it could manage during the day was a live satellite report from the scene—it began at 2:55 p.m. and ended five minutes later—and grumblings at NBC here at the meager amount of time ABC gave it.

ABC had begun broadcasting live from the scene at 8:10 a.m. and, after the end of the CBS report, shared time on the satellite with CBS on a pool arrangement that NBC was permitted to join at 5 p.m.

But the naoset, most of the show was an ABC exclusive, a well-done report that initially relied on the network's own ground-level camera which West German authorities commandeered for a close-up watch on Building 31 at the Olympic Village.

Jennings, ABC's Middle East correspondent, actually got inside the Olympic Village.

McKay, often criticized for his effusiveness as a sport commentator, never went overboard as an eyewitness to Tuesday's horror.

On several occasions, despite an array of fragmentary and conflicting reports in the early hours, he only broadcast what was confirmed.

He perhaps summed up the scene best at one point when describing the reaction of Olympic contestants from Arab countries: "I spoke to the athletes from North Africa, Tunis and Egypt. They all said the same thing. 'Madness, Madness.'"

Historic Artifacts Part Of Red Chinese Propaganda

EDITOR'S NOTE — The extraordinary legacy of classical Chinese art is being preserved under Mao Tse-tung — but primarily for its propaganda value, not for its aesthetic quality. In fact, says Barbara W. Tuchman, who recently returned from an extended visit to China, "beauty for its own sake, like sex, is officially out of favor." The famed prize-winning historian elaborates on the subject in the following third of four articles based on her trip.

By BARBARA W. TUCHMAN
Written for The Associated Press

Western visitors often arrive in China wondering whether Communism has destroyed the heritage of ancient treasures or left them to the ruin of neglect. As it turns out, a Department for the Preservation of Historic Relics has been functioning since 1949, and under its supervision palaces, pagodas, temples and gardens are in better condition, in most cases, than at any time since their original occupants departed.

The Communists are uncovering, repairing, restoring and opening all monuments to the public with the stated purpose, of course, of exhibiting how the proletariat class exploited the labor of the people for its private luxury.

Simultaneously if somewhat disjunctedly, the object is to show how China's famed heritage of arts is owed to "the wisdom of the masses," because theirs was the labor that built a Ming tomb or fired the glaze on porcelain or embroidered an emperor's silk coat. The share of the original architect, artist or designer goes unmentioned, leaving the public to conclude that the conception sprang full-blown from the brow of the masses.

This is the obvious rationale necessary to justify the investment of effort on relics of the leisure class. But after visiting museums and reconstructed sites of all kinds, from Neolithic villages to the last home of Dr. Sun Yat-sen in Shanghai, I could not escape the feeling — which I must stress is only my own impression — that the work of preservation and archaeological discovery is being done for its own sake, partly to keep a lot of people busy but also out of a kind of subdued pride in the national heritage.

What is left of the national collection of porcelains and paintings, after the major share was taken off to Taiwan by Chiang Kai-shek, is for some reason not on public view and only to be seen by special request.

Since religion has suffered the shutdown common under Communist regimes, many Buddhist and Taoist temples listed in guide books are not to be seen, perhaps because of vandalism suffered during the rampages of the Cultural Revolution or perhaps because they are simply closed. Others of special renown like the Temple of the Five Hundred Disciples at Suchow with its 500 glowing golden statues, or the rich buildings and grounds of the former Jen Ci monastery in Shans or Lung Men caves of Buddhist sculptures, have been preserved for public viewing without, as far as we could see, any anti-religious propaganda attached. Several have been designated national historical monuments by a commission established in 1961.

On the other hand, propaganda is heavy at the Ming Tombs, now excavated and publicly exhibited for the first time. Graphic charts claim to show that 30,000 men a day worked for six years, or 65,000,000 man-days, to build a useless tomb while every peasant household in the area was forced to contribute an average of 6.5 workers to the task.

Alongside models in the Sian Museum of the first seismograph, astrolabe and compass, and of the first man to use that pulse for medical diagnosis, the curators have displayed finely executed but imaginary portraits of the developers of these instruments and methods. The portraits clearly show men of the upper class with scholars' gowns and intellectual faces. Apparently the wisdom, in their case, is allowed to be their own.

Without inspiration from the masses. What this aberration signifies, if anything, I do not know; perhaps only the comforting thought that communism has its inconsistencies no less than Democracy.

Boy Falls From Car, Survives

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Police said a 3-year-old boy tumbled from a moving car on a busy interstate highway, bounced to a stop, got up and walked across two lanes of traffic and escaped with only minor cuts and bruises.

Young Raymond Wagonknecht, of West Chester, Ohio, was riding in a car driven by Patricia Stradlman 22, of West Chester, when the mishap occurred on Interstate 75 Wednesday.

Miss Stradlman said the car was traveling about 60 miles per hour when young Wagonknecht opened the rear door and fell out.

Witnesses said the boy bounced and rolled nearly 150 feet, but rose and walked across two lanes of traffic to the median strip.

Three drivers stopped to help, and the car of one of them was hit from behind by a fourth car. No one was seriously injured.

"I touched the door and it opened," said young Wagonknecht, who was held for observation at Children's Hospital.

Ul'th's father, was dumbfounded by the child's survival.

"It's unbelievable," he said.

Brown Seeks Drug Fight Money, Eyes Future In Politics

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. William J. Brown said he has "frons in the fire" to get funds for his drug program from sources other than the state and federal governments.

Brown, in an interview with Associated Press writers Robert E. Miller and Perry Smith, said he couldn't reveal his possible source of money at the time.

The legislature, Brown said, didn't give him enough for his drug unit, although he told it there was a drug problem in the state.

"I don't know, but I don't think they believed me," Brown said.

Brown also revealed that he plans to seek re-election as attorney general when his term expires in 1974 and will not run for governor or U. S. Senate, as has been speculated.

The interview follows:
Q—How has your relationship been with other state officials, specifically Gov. Gilligan?
A—Good.

—It's been said that you are planning to run for governor two years from now. How about it?

A—The only people who have been talking are the press and the people on the streets. Now, I know that I haven't been saying anything.

Q—Do you think that the talk that's been going on in the press hurts your relationship with other officeholders?

A—I don't think it hurts my relationship with the governor because I see him quite often, and he knows my intentions. But to some of the people who are less informed in state government, they see me as a threat to their boss. Obviously, that will sometimes strain relations, but you know, nothing serious.

Q—Could you share the information with us that you shared with the governor?

A—I'm going to stay right here.

Q—Run for attorney general again?

A—Certainly. I'm not going anywhere.

Q—Getting back to politics, what do you think of McGovern and Shriver and will you try to help them in Ohio?

A—Certainly. We are going to handle, or coordinate the voter registration drive. He's a Democrat, I'm a Democrat, so it will logically follow that I will support him. I think he's got an uphill run. I think he admits that.

Q—Are you saying that in the same way you would have supported any Democrat, including George Wallace?

A—Well, I would have some serious problems with George Wallace. I don't know the man. I don't follow him that closely. The only thing I can remember about George Wallace is his standing in front of that schoolhouse. These are the things that live with you the rest of your life. You have to be on your P' and Q's all the time.

Q—You said you were not a politico. But have you built up your political force with advisors and so on A—No. We don't have political advisors. We have some fellows I call in once in a while. But politics is like everything else, it's a feel for people and common sense, knowing when to get in and when to get out. It's a matter of timing, or luck. We have several fellows on our staff who have been involved, at least locally, in campaigns. They are from Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton—all over the state.

So, when we have a real tough political decision, or professional decision, we usually call everybody together. We find that when we do, we usually come up with the right answer. We had one meeting here last week at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Q—What was so important to bring you here at 2 o'clock in the morning?

A—Well, it was a professional decision. We got the input we needed. Red flags had been flying all over the place. But fortunately, it went very smooth.

Q—How has your relationship been with the press?

A—I think I have a pretty good relationship. I think most of the fellows, when I say something, they believe it. Sometimes, newspapers get on our back. I don't think there is anything personal involved, it's a difference in philosophy. I like the press, but before, I never did. I always had a basic distrust for newspapermen. Obviously, when I came into office, we were going to have press conferences by invitation. Do you remember that? One guy was on my back during the campaign, so I was not going to let him come in and get any newspaper stories.

Well, that's wrong. The press is a watchdog. One newspaper may print something that is not favorable when it should be, and another might print something that is much more favorable than it is.
Q—There has been speculation, again, in the press and other places that you may be interested in the U. S. Senate. What are your ambitions?

A—I'm satisfied where I am. You know, you can get into places like this and some people begin to pray to God. When I got out of law school, I thought if I could make $20,000 a year, I would be successful. After I made 20, then I said I'd have to make 40, and after you make that, you are looking at something else, so sooner or later that trend has to cease. It ceased for me when I got elected into the attorney general's office. That's far enough.

Q—When you first ran for attorney general, did you foresee any of the unusual circumstances that result in your election.

A—No. I was not a politico when I ran. I really didn't know a lot about the office. I don't think anybody really knows what goes on in the attorney general's office until they sit in the chair. Fortunately, we did not make any rash statements that we can't back up. Just about everything we said we would do we've done.

Q—You inherited the Kent State riot cases. How do you feel about the outcome of those?

A—It was like any other lawsuit. Anyone who says that he can predict the outcome of any lawsuit is a fool, even if you have an unqualified winner. If the evidence wasn't there, and you went up to the bench and said 'we don't have the evidence in this case, we want to dismiss it', they went out and talked about it, and we didn't have the evidence, so why go forward? Lawyers have an ethical duty when they don't have a case, not to prosecute, or even to file suit when you don't have a case. We try to operate under the Canons of Ethics, all the way, obviously.

Q—Do you feel grand juries called by the attorney general are successful?

A—Well, we don't call grand juries. Someone else asks us to call grand juries. I have some misgivings about special state grand juries, as everyone else. We like to let local people handle their own problems. We'll be happy to assist them. I read a piece in the paper from the chief justice and former attorneys general. They have the same feeling—that it is very difficult for the State of Ohio to enter into a local situation because it alienates everyone.

It will all balance out. I think. If you do things right, and you try to do your job, most of the time you are not going to have any problems. I sometimes quarrel with the pettiness of the press. I think sometimes they get their information from sources that are not as well informed as myself. If you have a problem with the attorney general's office, don't go over to the county commissioners' office and ask them what they think the attorney general is doing. Come in right here. The door always is open. I think that's one of the problems—a lack of communication.

Q—How do you view the role of the attorney general in the fight against crime?

A—Well, how I view it and how it is, is really two different ways. Right now, the attorney general's office is basically an investigative function that assists local law enforcement in their investigative problems, and sometimes using expertise to assist local law enforcement.

Q—Do you plan to ask for any legislation this year with regard to the attorney general's authority?

A—In the area of crime, do you mean?

Q—In any area—do you have a legislative program?

A—Well, we certainly do, but I can't give them to you right now. I think we were reasonably successful this year. We are, of course, assisting other agencies, such as environmental, civil rights, charitable trusts, in rifling through new legislation. Now, we have a pet bill over here within conflict of interest which is something we've been working on for a year. To date, we haven't got very far.

Q—In the months you have been in office, what do you feel has been your biggest challenge, coming into politics as strange to it as you were?

A—Well, the politics of the office is not that difficult. I think the biggest challenge we've had would be backlog. Secondly, just trying to keep up with the volume of work that we have. It's not routine if you consider such things as the environment push that we have, the conflict of interest push, the civil rights push, the charitable trust problems, which are all brand new to this office.

We have instituted a new charitable trust organization. We've instituted a new environmental organization. We have a new civil rights organization. We have a drug unit. The drug unit is not exactly new, but from what it was under previous administrations you wouldn't know it.

We have reorganized the whole office so that it can be easily administered. Our backlog is down for the first time since 1963—like in highway cases, for instance, we're down under a thousand. These are all matters of record. You can look these things up. We've set production records in every section of the office.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Reader Gives Rules For Better America

DEAR ABBY: Here are a few simple rules, which, if followed, could save our nation:

1. The man should be the head of the family. His wife should stay home and look after the children.

2. A married man should get preference for a job over a single man.

3. Married women should give up their jobs to married men.

4. A child should never come home from school to an empty house.

5. There should be radio and television blackouts every day from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. so families could talk to each other and bridge the generation gap. Very truly yours,

FOR A STRONGER AMERICA

DEAR FOR: Re Number 1: How about families in which there is no man? Or if the wife's energies and talents extend beyond child tending? Or where there are no children at all?

2. Why should a man be penalized because he has chosen to remain single? Job opportunities should be based on ability, not marital status.

3. Why? Some married women must carry the same financial load as married men.

4. Working mothers can't always manage to be home before their children.

5. What ever happened to freedom of choice?

DEAR ABBY: What would you think of a husband who after being married over a year still looks all his belongings up in cedar closets? There is nobody else in the house but me.

Also, he gets all his mail at his sister's house.

What does he have to hide?

BEWILDERED IN CONN.

DEAR BEWILDERED: I would be more concerned about what he imagines he has to hide, than what he actually has. He's behaving like a sick man. Urge him to see a doctor.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is going to sound like a nightmare! I just found a library book that is 2 1/2 years overdue! I figured it out, and it will cost me $80.60 if I turn it in and pay the overdue penalty. The book itself cost only $5. Abby, I just don't know what to do. Should I just say I lost it and will be glad to replace it with a new one? Paying that ridiculous overdue penalty doesn't make any sense to me. Can you help me?

GUILTY

DEAR GUILTY: Take the book back to the library, and throw yourself on the librarian's mercy and ask if he can settle for the price of a new book.

DEAR ABBY: Some kook signed "Taxpayer" was all worked up because she wanted to call up her postmaster and ask him why he "ate" her pension check, and she found out he had an unlisted telephone number. Then she asked you why "public servants" like postmasters needed unlisted telephone numbers. Boy, that beats everything.

My husband is at his job at the post office all day, yet some stupid woman called him at home in the middle of his evening meal to ask him how much it cost to send a postcard air mail now!

POSTMASTER'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: With postal rates changing as frequently as they have been, it's not such a stupid question. Had she called the post office, any employee could have told her.

Sneek-A-Peek

By Pickaway County Library Staff

With the baseball season rapidly drawing to a close, young fans may wish to read some of the new titles on this sport recently acquired in the library. Fans of the Cincinnati Reds will be interested in another new Johnny Bench biography, "Johnny Bench, The Little General" by Bill Libby. In this book, Bill Libby tells the story of Johnny Bench, talented catcher for the Cincinnati Reds and his efforts to be the "greatest catcher in the game." The same author writes of another Cincinnati hometown boy who made good in "Pete Rose: They Call Him Charlie Hustle."

"Little League Hotshots" by William Heuman is the story of Luis Santo, a Puerto Rican boy who stays with his uncle in a migrant labor camp. He is lonely until he meets "Pepe," a big red dog who comes out of the nearby swamp. Luis becomes a member of the Puerto Rican Little League baseball team. The fight for the Little League championship and the appearance of Pepe's real owner teach Luis that sometimes it is in losing that we gain.

Bill Carol, an ardent baseball fan and writer of many sports stories for boys, has a new baseball story, "High Fly to Center." Mickey Ortega, a thirteen year old boy, runs away from his vacationing family because he cannot bear the thought of his Little League Team play six games without him. Alone and confused in the big city, he discovers and ally in an Indian boy, Charlie Johnson. Interest reaches a climax in the final game with the Tigers with Mickey racing after high flies to center field.

Another sports writer, popular with young people, C. Paul Jackson has a new title, "Fifth Inning Fade Out." Twelve year old Joe Mancini pitches great ball for five innings, then goes to pieces. Practice and coaching do not help. How Joe and his coach discover what is wrong is the basis of this exciting baseball story. Young players who pay attention to the suggestions for improving Joe's game may receive improvement in their own game as a spinoff.

For those who prefer non-fiction, "All the Home Run Kings by Arthur Daly is a revision of his "Kings of the Home Run" (1962). Included in this revision is the latest information on Henry Lewis Aaron, Ernie Banks, Willie McCovey, and others. "More Strange But True Baseball Stories" by Hoard Liss is a collection of anecdotes and stories of unusual, amusing, and offbeat moments in baseball history.

Two new books will appeal to racing fans. "Where Speed is King" is a collection of racing stories edited by Phyllis R. Fenner. Most of the stories are about auto racing, but included are stories of horse-racing, balloon racing, and railroad racing. "Steve McQueen, Star on Wheels" by William F. Nolan is the story of the two careers of this well-known person. The emphasis in this particular biography is primarily on his racing career.

Chess Teacher's Income Jumps After Tournament

By HOWARD CLARK
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — "People want to take chess lessons from me for $100 an hour," Shelby Lyman said incredulously, "and I don't have time."

A few months ago, chess teacher Shelbourne Richard Lyman of Brooklyn would have made time for well-paying patrons. Now he's busy making personal appearances at $1,000 each, conferring with publishers over advances of $40,000 and $50,000 for books on chess and discussing television programs on chess for untold thousands of dollars in fees.

"I didn't have an agent before," he said. "Now I have agents keeping track of agents."

The sudden fame was thrust upon him because of his work as commentator on the educational television network broadcast of the world chess championship between Bobby Fischer and Boris Spassky. The programs, first televised locally in New York State by the state Public Broadcast System, were picked up and distributed nationwide.

Although he welcomes the publicity, Lyman is perturbed by the description that he is the Julia Child of chess. "I don't even look like her," he said, missing the analogy completely.

The 35-year-old former sociology teacher is distinguished by his nervous energy and his passion for teaching chess. "It's important not to discourage people, to make them relax and enjoy the game. We have to avoid making chess formidable and make it something for people to enjoy."

Michael Chase, director of operations of the Public Broadcasting System, was instrumental in Lyman's appearance on the program. "He was a pupil of mine," said Lyman, "I suggested the idea to him, and we developed a bigger and bigger program."

Auto Accident After Chase Fatal

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — David Skiles, 13, of suburban Oregon, died Wednesday in St. Vincent Hospital of injuries received in an auto accident following a chase Sunday.

Police said Skiles and two other teenagers were in the car that led lawmen from both Toledo and Oregon on a wild chase that finally ended when the car ran into the Anthony Wayne Bridge.

Albee Theater Rescue Sought

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Cincinnati city councilman has added a new punch to the drive to save the historic Albee Theater from destruction.

Storms Rake Wide Area Of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

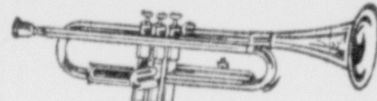

A wide belt of thunderstorms slashed across the country's midsection from northern Arizona to the central Plains and northern Midwest today, spurred by a new influx of cool Northern air.

Some of the storms were severe. Large hail pelted Jarbel, Kan., west of Kansas City. Winds up to 50 miles an hour whistled through Russell, Kan., and heavy rains posed the problem of possible flash floods in the northeastern counties of the state.

Most of New England was warm and dry, but there was some rain along the coast in the Carolinas and along the Gulf in Florida extending into southern Alabama and Georgia.

Tropical storm Dawn was expected to increase to full hurricane strength today. It was located about 600 miles southwest of Bermuda and moving slowly northeastward during the early hours, posing a threat to the tourist island.

Television Slates 25th Anniversary Show

The Circleville Herald, Thur. Sept. 7, 1972 9
Circleville, Ohio

By JERRY BUCK
Related Press Writer
LYWOOD (AP) — Television, that infant among entertainment mediums, has reached the quarter century mark.

From Milton Berle to Flip Wilson, "Ozzie and Harriet" to "All in the Family," George to the Olympics, fuzzy six-inch sets to solid-state color models and kinescopes to satellites, television has come a long way in 25 years.

Television, which has seldom considered its past beyond the value of a rerun, is taking a nostalgic look back at its tender years on the day before the fall season begins. Numerous stars from the past and present are participating.

Appropriately enough, this sentimental journey was undertaken not by a network but by an independent production company, Cooper-Finkel. The show, "A Salute to Television's 25th Anniversary," will be seen on ABC Sunday, Sept. 10.

"There are things you forget about," said Jackie Cooper, who put together film clips of TV's past and whose own participation in the medium reaches back to its earliest days.

"American Bandstand" and "Victory At Sea." It's all part of television if you're paying tribute to it.

"You say, where do you put 'Pantomime Quiz? It's a lot of fun to look at it. It's fun to see 'Playhouse 90.' It's exciting to see MacArthur addressing Congress. You take the kid shows and show what's happened from 'Howdy Doody' to 'Same Street.'"

In all, Cooper assembled 35 minutes of clips from old shows to be shown on the 90-minute special. He had a team of researchers digging up old films — often times found stored in a stars garage. Cooper said he was saddened by the shabby treatment of television's past product and would like to see the establishment of a library similar to the American Film Institute.

Cooper had another problem with the old film. He said, "We had to stop the lab from improving it. They were retiming the film. It didn't look antiquated enough. We didn't want it to look like it was shot yesterday."

Most of the show will be taken up by song-and-dance production numbers keyed to television and by the presentation of awards voted by the board of governors of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

In some cases the old clips read into a production number, as with "Your Hit Parade." Four members of the original cast, Eileen Wilson, Russell Arms, Cisele MacKenzie and nooky Lanson, sing songs from that early show.

As much as anything, the salute to television will be a study in contrasts. "It's fun to watch Jim Arness grow and change in 'Gunsmoke,'" Cooper said. "We have a clip of Arness and Amanda Blake in the first show and then 17 years later. The difference in their acting is amazing."

Not only have acting styles changed, but so has the medium itself. Programs have grown more slick and sophisticated. Movies have replaced original drama as the dramatic format. Comedy is moving steadily toward realism. Westerns once dominated the tube — in all, 61 have galloped down the road — and are now in decline.

Television's tools also became more sophisticated and they are employed throughout the show. Marly Pasetta, producer-director, said, "We shot the show in about eight different sessions because we couldn't get everyone together at the same time." Chroma Key and video tape — undreamed of at the inception of television — are the means by which the stars are made to appear to be conversing with each other. Chroma Key is a means by which different images can be electronically matted into one picture.

"Even in the production numbers we use TV tools," said Pasetta. "When Polly Bergen sings 'How Sweet It Was,' we have 16 dancers. On the air it will look like 64 dancers."

Among those appearing will be Lucille Ball, Bob Hope, Sid

Caesar, Milton Berle, Dinah Shore, Lorne Greene, Ed Sullivan, Florence Henderson, George C. Scott, Efrim Zimbalist Jr., Judith Anderson, Jimmy Durante, Robert Young, John Wayne and James Arness. It was Wayne who suggested Arness for the role of Matt Dillon in "Gunsmoke" and did the first on-the-air promo for the show.

Not every star of television past was willing to cooperate, Cooper said, and some refused to allow any film clips to be used. In those cases, he said, publicity still photographs are used.

Shocknessy Attacked By Gilligan

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan, claiming it was up to the General Assembly to decide whether tolls would be continued on the Ohio Turnpike after its debt is paid off in 1980, took a verbal slap at Turnpike Chairman James W. Shocknessy today.

"He often speaks in a manner unbecoming someone who wants to be taken seriously as a public official," Gilligan said of Shocknessy, a fellow Democrat who has been on the Turnpike Commission since its creation 23 years ago.

Shocknessy has criticized two bills, both Republican sponsored, that would permit the turnpike to be used as a revenue source for mass transit systems after 1980 and would provide a two-cent boost in gasoline tax.

Shocknessy Tuesday suggested the present seven-cent per gallon state gasoline tax might be refunded turnpike users, since it didn't go for upkeep of the toll road.

Shocknessy said it would be "a fraud" if the legislature "broke its promise to the people and continued tolls on the northern Ohio roadway it was paid off.

Gilligan said he didn't advocate continuing the tolls. "I think they should stop unless the General Assembly wants to continue the tolls," he said.

The governor said he agreed with Shocknessy that there were legal questions as to whether the tolls could be continued after turnpike bonds were retired.

First-Grade Students Get Little Advice

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati school children returned to classes for the fall term Wednesday, and some faced an opening-day quiz.

Cincinnati Enquirer reporter Jim Hutton asked one second-grade group what advice they would offer their first-grade brothers or sisters upon their entry into the world of education.

The replies:
"I don't have a little brother," said Andy, a student at Clifton Elementary School, but I've got a big brother. . . and. . . I know what I'd tell him.
"I'd tell him he's mean and I hate him cause he beats me up all the time."

Little Mary said, "I'd tell my friend, that my teacher was nice and then my teacher moved out." Mary did not explain.

Annette said, "My teacher lets you go to the bathroom, and she lets you play outside and she lets you make pictures and read books."

"I've got a little brother," said Rolf.

"I'm going to get a little sister—from my mom," Ronald said.

What advice would their friend Donald give a fledgling first grader?
"I'd just say: 'Who cares?'" he said. "I'm in second."

Hyperactive Problem Hereditary

CHICAGO (AP) — A "significant percentage" of hyperactive children have parents who were hyperactive or who have psychiatric problems, a psychiatrist says.

Health Board, Groups Map Yearly Plans

Pickaway County Board of Health met in regular session Tuesday with Dick Jones, division chief of the Department of Natural Resources, lands and soils division, and Norris Williams and James Kerr of the division's Chillicothe branch map out cooperation between the two departments in the coming year.

The board also decided that the final decision concerning home sewage systems would be based on engineering guidelines. Don Archer and Tom Mountain of the Soil Conservation Services were present at this phase of the meeting.

Effective Jan. 1, 1973, septic tank installers will be required to purchase licenses at the Health Department before starting their work.

Other visitors at the meeting were Perrill Road residents who complained about surface water and sewage disposal problems in their area.

GTE Plant Supervisor Completes Training

Arthur B. Clem of Route 2, a plant supervisor, has received a certificate for completing a special training course at General Telephone Co. of Ohio's Plant Training School in Marion.

This one-week course covers installation and maintenance of voice paging systems such as those used by many factories and other businesses.

A graduate of Johnson St. Paris High School, he has been with the company five and one-half years. He works in area exchanges in the company's Circleville district.

Clem previously completed one other specialized course in the company's training program.

The data indicates that "the hyperactive child syndrome is passed from generation to generation and may be a precursor of certain adult psychiatric illnesses," Dr. Dennis P. Cantwell of Los Angeles reports in the September issue of the Archives of General Psychiatry, published by the American Medical Association.

Dr. Cantwell, associated with the UCLA School of Medicine, compared 50 boys diagnosed as hyperactive with 50 who were considered normal.

Hyperactive children are generally considered to be problems in school, and the use of drugs to control these children has recently created controversy among educators, the medical profession and congressmen.

The syndrome is more common among boys and starts early in life. It is characterized by overactivity, short attention span, impulsiveness and excitability.

These children, Cantwell noted, are discipline problems, have difficulty getting along with other children and have

Rites Held For Woman

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Burial services were scheduled here today for a suburban Cincinnati art teacher whose body was found near Rabbit Hash, Ky., last week, and whose death still is shrouded in mystery.

Mrs. Kayleen Florence, 35, a Wyoming, Ohio, resident, was reported missing from her home Aug. 11. Her husband called police when he returned from a brief Kentucky trip with his children and discovered her missing.

Police later said a blood stain was found on a carpet in the home, and a blood-stained towel was found in the yard. The woman's car later was found near a high school athletic field in suburban Cincinnati.

Mrs. Florence's body was identified through a check of dental records.

Don Stith, Boone County, Ky., coroner, says the cause of death still has not been determined. Authorities are continuing the investigation.

Labor Backers Of Demos To Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio labor leaders who back the Democratic presidential ticket will gather in Columbus Saturday to map their fall election campaign.

Co-chairmen of the group, which calls itself Ohio Labor for McGovern-Shriver, are Martin Hughes, vice president of Communications Workers of America District 4, and William Casstevens, Cleveland regional director of the United Auto Workers.

The group held its organization meeting last week, and this week's session reportedly will be to plan what the group considers will be largely an informative and educational role among Ohio labor.

Senior Citizens Air By-Laws

The Executive Committee of the Pickaway County Committee on Aging held a meeting in the Senior Center at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, with the chairman, Rev. Donald Makarius presiding.

Mrs. Vera Saunders acted as secretary pro tem in the absence of Mrs. Helen Reed who had resigned.

Main item on the agenda was a review of the first draft of by-laws for the Committee on Aging. Several changes were made and the revised version will be presented to the membership for approval at the October regular meeting.

Commissioner Charles Morris reported that County Commissioners had contacted the state building inspection office and explained that the occupancy of the building at 430 Lancaster Pike was considered a temporary location, since the membership is growing to such a size that a larger place will soon be necessary. In line with this thinking, the chairman was instructed to appoint a housing committee at the October meeting, to investigate a possible future location for a Senior Center which would include larger quarters.

It was decided to dispense with business at the regular meeting of the Committee on Aging on September 15. This is to be a luncheon meeting 12 noon at the L.K. Restaurant, at which time the speaker will be Ralph Green, economic and housing consultant. He will speak on "Building Retirement and Nursing Homes". This meeting is open to the public. Reservations for the lunch must be made with the Pickaway Senior Center by Sept. 12. Telephone 474-4916.

1 American Killed In War During Week

SAIGON (AP) — One American was killed in combat last week, the lowest death toll in nine months, but five more were missing in aircraft crashes and 26 were wounded in artillery barrages, the U.S. Command announced today.

Another American died from nonhostile causes.

Spokesmen said the last week in which only one combat death was reported was nine months ago, in December 1971.

Heavy Vietnamese casualties continued to reflect the hard fighting in Hanoi's six-month-old offensive. The government reported 551 South Vietnamese soldiers killed, 2,116 wounded and 2,744 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American 45,856 killed in action, 303,372 wounded, 1,667 missing in action, 10,265 dead from nonhostile causes, 118 missing from nonhostile causes. South Vietnamese—154,325 killed, 403,246 wounded.

Viet Cong and North Vietnamese—882,616 killed.

Questions Taxpayers Ask

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q I plan to file an amended 1971 return to claim a disaster loss deduction for damage suffered in the June floods. Is there any way I can speed up processing of my return to get my refund faster?

(A) Yes. Mark the words, "Disaster Areas Loss," at the top of the amended return you file and on the envelope you use to mail your return. In addition, send your return to the box number at your Internal Revenue Service Center especially set up to receive amended returns from flood victims. Call your local IRS office for the special box number in your area.

Q I made a political contribution of $150 last month. Can I deduct this on my 1972 return?

(A) If you itemize deductions you may deduct a political contribution of $50 if you are single or $100 if you are married and filing a joint return.

Instead of a deduction, you may claim a credit against your tax of one-half of your political contributions up to maximum of $12.50 if you are single and $25 if you are married filing jointly.

Q When do I pay the third installment of my 1972 estimated tax?

(A) The third installment of your 1972 estimated tax is due on September 15, 1972. Send your payment along with the voucher included in your Form 1040-ES package to the address shown in the instructions for the form. Be sure to include your correct Social Security number on each declaration-voucher, so that payments may be properly credited to your account.

Q Can a self-employed individual deduct contributions to his own retirement plan?

(A) Yes. If you are in business for yourself, you may deduct your contributions to a self-employed retirement plan, provided that the contributions are based on earned income and certain requirements are met. You can work in your business either full or parttime.

For more details, send a postcard to your Internal Revenue district office and ask for a free copy of IRS Publication 560, "Retirement Plans for Self-Employed Individuals," and 566, "Questions and Answers on Retirement Plans for the Self-Employed."

Moody Predicts Boom For Airport

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Tom Moody predicted Wednesday that the Columbus airport could become the "distribution center of the Midwest," after meeting with two West German industrialists to discuss the city as a site for a new regional sales office.

Moody said locating the sales office here would mean expanding the airport's international freight trade capabilities and would allow European concerns to fly their products directly to Columbus without stopping on the East Coast for customs inspection.

Shriver Opens Ohio Trip With Swing Around Dayton

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Democratic vice presidential nominee Sargent Shriver was scheduled to fly into Cox Municipal Airport here today, his third visit to the Buckeye State in recent weeks.

Shriver's plane, nicknamed "Lucky 7," was to arrive from Detroit shortly after noon and the candidate had approximately six hours of campaigning planned in the Dayton area before departing tonight for St. Louis.

Shriver's plane was nicknamed last weekend when he left Hyannisport, Mass., for a two week, cross-country campaign trip. It was chosen because Shriver was the seventh person considered by his ticket leader, Sen. George McGovern, as his running mate.

Prior to his Dayton stops, Shriver addressed a meeting of United Auto Workers in Detroit in what had been billed as a major labor address.

Earlier he canceled two campaign appearances in Michigan because of the deaths at the Olympic games.

Following an airport reception, Shriver was to attend an afternoon reception at Gem City Democratic Club, then tape a television show for later viewing.

Also during the afternoon, Shriver was expected to meet with Mrs. Bette Lowrey of suburban Fairborn, a 48-year-old housewife who recently relinquished her title of "typical American voter" to a younger woman.

Mrs. Lowrey was selected two years ago by the International Association of Machinists and a newspaper here before 1820 years-olds were permitted to vote.

Shriver's last campaign trip was through northern Ohio and the Cleveland area.

He also made a campaign appearance in the Cincinnati area.

Body Of American Israeli Team Member Flown Home

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The body of David Berger, a Shaker Heights man who was representing Israel in the Olympic Games when he became a victim of terrorists, was due in Cleveland today.

An Air Force plane is to bring the body back from Munich, Germany where Berger, 28, was competing in Olympic weight lifting.

Services are expected to be held at 11 a.m. Friday at Fairmount Temple with hundreds expected to attend. The funeral home handling arrangements said it had received over 400 telephone calls Wednesday asking about services.

Berger was one of 11 members of the Israeli team killed Tuesday during and after a raid by Arab terrorists.

"He was gentle," said John W. Schubert, his former coach.

Bobby Fischer Early For Eldjarn Meet

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — World chess champion Bobby Fischer made an about face in his usual pattern and showed up early at a reception hosted by President Kristjan Eldjarn.

The Brooklyn chess whiz arrived at the old farmhouse which serves as the Icelandic president's residence 10 minutes early Tuesday night in the company of Sademundur Pals-son of Iceland.

"So gentle and quiet that you'd never expect him to be involved in violence like this."

Berger was former junior national middleweight champion weightlifter of the United States, national YMCA champion, national collegiate champion, middleweight champion of the 1969 Maccabiah Games and second in last year's Asian Games in the Philippines.

"He was dedicated to becoming a champion," said Schubert of the former honor student at Shaker Heights High School, Tulane University and Columbia University.

Scubert said Berger went to Israel two years ago because "we figure he didn't think he could make the U.S. Olympic team. The competition is pretty high."

Berger retained his American citizenship but as a Jew was given automatic citizenship in Israel and was allowed to join the Israeli Olympic squad.

A spokesman for his parents, Dr. Benjamin Berger and his wife, Dorothy, said the family had praise for the State Department and the office of U.S. Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, who made arrangements for the body's return and located David's brother, Fred 25, and sister, Barbara, 22, in Salzburg. They had left the Olympics after watching their brother compete Saturday and were also to arrive in Cleveland today.

Justice . . .

enness and prostitution—"too much minutia of the lower thing."

Judges, Douglas said, "should save their energies for the big things." And, he added, "on the big things, the problem has been greatly exaggerated."

And this is where Douglas clashed directly with the Burger view. Environmental and consumer class actions, he said, must not be shut out.

"If Congress should redesign the jurisdiction of federal courts so as to leave out of them the environmental questions, then we go down the drain really very fast," the justice said.

"Because we then would be victims of the administrative agencies."

"And these administrative agencies, though they're very high-minded and though they're not venal, re very oppressive. There must be some check on them. There must be, unless they're going to be abolished."

Douglas' work methods are very much in line with what he said.

Every year, consistently, he votes to hear many more appeals than any other member of the court. Douglas also writes the tersest and briefest opinions, if not necessarily the most literary.

And he persists in the peculiar and highly individualistic custom of deciding on his own when it is time to close the office and head for Goose Prairie, his telephoneless retreat in Washington state where CBS filmed the interview last June.

What this generally means is that Douglas hands in his opinions and quits while the court and its eight colleagues are still sitting. This has been true under Burger as it was under Warren.

"Some of the others complain they're working 18 hours a day every day to keep up," interviewer Eric Sevareid reminded him.

"Well," replied Douglas, who is 73, "you need the week to think about these problems, but you can be hiking while you are—you don't need to stop thinking."

Gonorrhea Fight Set For Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State officials say a new detection program being started with the help of an $816,000 federal grant hopefully will check the alarming spread of gonorrhea in Ohio.

Gov. John Gilligan, noting that gonorrhea, and venereal disease generally, has "reached frightening proportions," said the grant will be used to implement statewide detection program.

He said the Department of Health will increase its field staff 40 per cent to a total of 17 and 25 health aides will be added to work directly with local health departments.

State Health Director John Cashman, who made the announcement jointly with Gilligan Wednesday, said the program should have a strong impact on the increase of gonorrhea in females.

Of the approximately 190,000 cases of gonorrhea in Ohio, he said, nearly 75 per cent are females.

Cashman also noted that 90 per cent of all female cases have no visible symptoms until the advance stages, by which time permanent damage can result to the brain, heart, liver and reproductive organs.

Leaves are the key to whether a tree should be known as hardwood or softwood. Broad-leaved trees are usually called hardwoods and trees with needle-like leaves softwoods.

Industrial States Losers In Revenue Sharing Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has defeated an initial attempt to give larger industrial states a bigger share of the money in a $34.8-billion revenue-sharing bill.

The 61-24 vote Wednesday against the amendment by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., was no surprise because senators from small states outnumber those from the bigger states which would have benefited from Ribicoff's proposal.

Ribicoff sought to change the distribution formula in the bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee. The committee altered the House-approved version in ways that favor 33 smaller states and cause losses to only 17.

Nevertheless, Senators from the big urban states said they would make further attempts to revise the formula.

Debate on the major bill was to continue this afternoon.

Ribicoff insisted that the large states "get far less than their fair share" under the distribution formula worked out by the Senate committee. The House version is more favorable to the industrialized states.

"The rejuvenation of our cities was one of the prime considerations in the development of the revenue-sharing concept," the Connecticut senator said.

But, he went on, the states with the most severe urban problems are discriminated against by the Finance Committee's plan.

Ribicoff sought to introduce into the formula a special allowance for urbanized population.

This would have been added to the three factors used by the committee—state population as a whole, state per-capita income, and state general tax effort—as the basis for apportioning federal funds.

Finance Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., floor manager for the bill, strongly opposed the amendment.

He said the smaller, poorer states were helped in the formula adopted by his panel because the per-capita-income factor was added specifically to aid them. These states need the help more than the big ones, he declared.

Long argued also that the central cities would gain under his committee's bill although most states in which they are located would not. The losses will be sustained by the suburbs surrounding the big cities and they do not need aid, he contended.

The Senate voted 58 to 26 Wednesday in favor of an amendment by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., setting minimum wage standards on jobs or projects financed at least 25 per cent by the federal funds.

Governments Study Curbs On International Terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is pushing on a broad diplomatic front for international agreement on ways of curbing terrorists. But no such accord is expected soon.

Late Wednesday, the State Department called in envoys from 40 countries to start consultations on what might be done to prevent recurrence of such incidents as the mass murder of Israeli Olympic athletes seized by Arab commandos.

Department spokesman Charles Bray said afterward that the diplomatic talks may go on "for days, weeks and months." It is "obviously a very complex, difficult and perhaps protracted problem," he said.

Administration strategists resisted calls for a quick crackdown on specific Arab countries, though Washington reverberated with exhortations for tough action.

Blaming the Egyptian and Lebanese governments for the murders, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern said President Nixon should demand that Egypt "root out these international outlaws" as a price for resuming diplomatic relations.

The Senate voted 82 to 0 in favor of economic sanctions against nations harboring terrorists.

Administration officials said their information still is unclear as to the membership of the Black September group blamed for the Munich terror, nor can they be sure of its sources of support.

They contended that public fingerprinting at foreign governments at this stage is not a good way of enlisting their cooperation in curbing terrorists.

Yet there was also apprehension among U.S. officials that if some effective international action is not taken, Israel will strike back somewhere with retaliatory violence against Arabs.

Republicans Plan Fish Fry

Cong. William Keating, Cong. William Harsha, State Senator Harry L. Armstrong, Guy Brown, candidate for State Representative, and L. Robert Liston, candidate for Pickaway County Commissioner, will be at the third annual Republican fish fry and meet the candidates night at the Fairgrounds Coliseum Sept. 9. Serving will be from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. and the program at 7 p.m.

Main speakers at the Fish Fry will be Cong. William J. Keating of Cincinnati representing the Ohio Committee to Reelect the President, and Cong. William H. Harsha (Ohio 6th District) of Portsmouth.

Keating was elected to Congress in 1970. He serves as a member of the House Judicial Committee on Crime. He is also a member of the Republican Task Force on Drug Abuse and the Task Force on Health Care.

William Harsha was elected to Congress in 1960. He was re-elected to Congress in 1962, 1964, 1966, 1968, and 1970. Cong. Harsha serves on two standing House Committees, Public Works and District of Columbia.

Church Of Christ Homecoming Slated

The Williamsport Church of Christ in Christian Union will hold its homecoming 2:30 p.m. Sunday. There will be a carry in lunch.

The Rev. David Lattimer of Circleville Bible College will be the speaker in the morning and afternoon service. In the afternoon there will singing by the Gospel Trio from South Solon. The Wesley Chaperlains from Winchester and Darlene Anderson from Hillsboro.

Bermuda laws restrict the number, size and horsepower of automobiles. To stay within size limits, some have recessed bumpers and door handles.

Hog Cholera Controlled?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We've got our fingers crossed and hope we . . . got it under control," a state agriculture official said Wednesday in reporting there are no known cases of hog cholera remaining in Ohio.

Dr. Harry Goldstein, chief of the Division of Animal Industry, said the slaughter of nearly 2,000 hogs on 11 farms appears to have eliminated the disease in Ohio.

Goldstein said his office still was getting calls from people who suspected their animals had the disease, but all of the recent reports have proved to be negative.

The disease was brought to Ohio by hogs shipped here from Horse Cave, Ky., Goldstein said.

The state destroyed herds on six farms in Darke County, three in Van Wert County and one each in Greene and Clinton counties. As far as he knew, Goldstein said, that took care of all the hogs, shipped from Horse Cave.

Steam-Powered Bus Suffers Breakdown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Well, there's always tomorrow," the project manager said after an experimental steam-powered bus broke down just before its first passenger-carrying test.

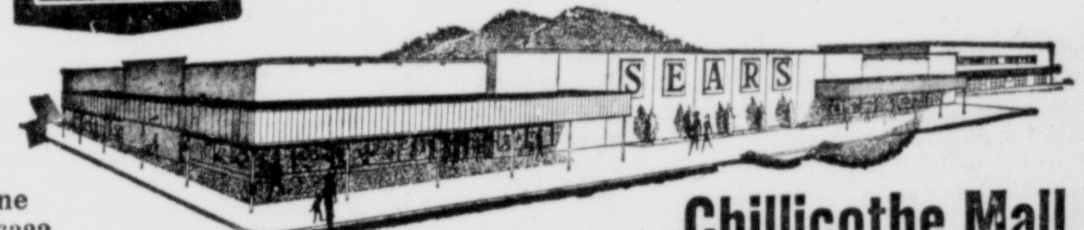

A broken boiler fan drive bolt disrupted plans of the project Tuesday.

U.S. Boxers Gain Olympic Semifinals

By BOB JOHNSON
Associated Press Sports Editor
MUNICH (AP) — "Just plain ol' beat 'em," is the strategy of U.S. boxers Jesse Valdez and Ricardo Carreras—and Primo Giancarlo says his Italian basketball team is going to have to learn a little boxing, too, to knock off the unbeaten Yanks.

Valdez and Carreras, America's "Latin Connection" in the ring, moved into the semifinals of these 20th Summer Olympics Wednesday as the Games tragically interrupted by the Arab terrorists' murderous attack on the Israeli team, resumed following a 24-hour postponement and a memorial for the slain Olympians.

After heavyweights Duane Bobick's loss to Cuban Teofilo Stevenson on Tuesday, it was beginning to look as if the critics were right in saying U.S. amateur boxing had gone into a dismal skid.

But the two American Air Force sergeants—Valdez, a 25-welterweight from Houston, and Carreras, 23, a New York bantamweight of Puerto Rican origin—put at least a temporary halt to the criticism.

"I can't say I'm the best," Valdez grinned after he had jabbed Russian Anatoly Kholov into submission, "but the fans seem to think so. I don't want to brag—but I guess I'm pretty good."

Carreras had a tougher time of it, winning a split decision from another Russian, Vasily Solomin, by dominating the first and third rounds while the Soviet boxer counter-punched effectively in the second.

Carreras got a bit of a break when Spain's Juan Francisco Rodriguez lost to Alfonso Zamora, a Mexican whom Carreras feared less.

Zamora won when Rodriguez bent over to pick up his mouthpiece and the referee, thinking he was falling over, halted the bout. Rodriguez went haywire, crying, pounding the canvas and charging the referee before being restrained.

"Too bad for him but okay for me," Carreras said. Valdez will face Cuban Emilio Correa, who outpointed West German Guenter Meier.

Giancarlo believes his team's effectiveness at stopping the Yanks from close in will spell the difference in Thursday night's semifinal. Russia plays Cuba in the other semifinal.

"The United States," Italy's coach said, "is very tough defensively and in rebounding. Beating the Americans to the boards is going to be one of our problems."

"We must box out, something we haven't been able to do very well. I stressed that in our workouts since Monday," he added.

Italy is 5-2 here while the Yanks, 7-0, have never lost in 62 Olympic contests since the sport was introduced in the 1936 Berlin Games.

Giancarlo is also counting on what he believes is a less-than-high spirit on the part of the young U.S. SQUAD "Somehow I get the impression that they only have played as hard as was necessary to win. Now I'm just hoping that they don't decide to really open up against us."

Rick DeMont swam as hard as was necessary to win but, on Wednesday, the powers that be here really opened up against him—or, more precisely, against U.S. swimming officials.

Last Friday, DeMont won the gold medal in the 400-meter freestyle — but after the race, traces of Ephedrine were found in a sample of his urine.

Because of that, the 16-year-old swimmer from San Rafael, Calif., who takes the medication to combat an asthmatic condition, was asked by the International Olympic Committee to withdraw from Sunday's 1,500-meter freestyle, the event in which he held the world record. Mike Burton of Sacramento, Calif., won that race.

And on Wednesday, the IOC stripped DeMont of his 400-meter gold because of his use of Ephedrine, a drug banned by the IOC's Medical Commission.

Prince Alexandre De Merode of the commission said officials of other teams had taken up the question of the drug and had been advised to substitute another one but that U.S. officials had failed to do so.

Another thing Americans have failed to do is much of anything in Greco-Roman wrestling. In the first round involving 10 weight classes, only Air Force Capt. Wayne Baughman, 31, of Universal City, Tex., managed a victory pining Sweden's Roland Anderson in a 198-pound match.

Montreal Continues Plans For Olympics

MONTREAL (AP) — The City of Montreal is determined to go ahead with plans for the 1976 Olympic Games regardless of any threat of guerrilla action similar to the killing of Israeli athletes in Munich. Mayor Jean Drapeau said Wednesday.

"Just the thought of giving up the Montreal Olympic Games because of the terrible events in Munich would be to admit to the right of barbarity to impose its dictates on civilization," Mayor Drapeau told a news conference.

Federal Strip Mining Bill Toughened By Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Interior Committee has turned out a bill to regulate surface coal mining that may be tougher than the panel expected—or intended.

The committee Wednesday approved the Coal Mine Surface Area Protection Act with an amendment that could sharply limit the amount of strip mining done in coal-rich Appalachia.

The measure could reach the House floor this month and the limiting provision is sure to be a target for amendment. At the same time, Rep. Ed Edmondson, D-Okla., expects "very strong support" for the bill.

The amendment, offered by Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., as the committee neared the end of its deliberations, apparently caught the panel by surprise.

Before amendment, a section of the bill on denial of mining permits gave the secretary of the Interior authority to deny any strip-mine permit which included removing the "overburden," the material above a coal seam, on slopes greater than 14 degrees from the horizontal.

Roncalio's amendment changed 14 degrees to 20, but removed the discretion the secretary had over denial. As amended, the bill directs the secretary to deny permits to remove overburden on slopes greater than 20 degrees.

"It's a much tougher bill today," said Edmondson, who acted as chairman of the committee meeting.

"This hit Appalachia right between the eyes," he said. Western coal-producing states would not be as hard hit by the 20-degree limit, Edmondson said, "but in Appalachia you'd have a hard time finding much mining without some slopes of 20 degrees."

Edmondson and apparently some other committee members voted for the amendment thinking that the secretary's discretion had been left intact.

After Roncalio had left the meeting, Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., noticed the significant change in the amendment and asked for the necessary unanimous consent of the other committee members to revise the issue. That was blocked by an objection.

Poet Dickey Has Multiple Talents

JAMES DICKEY

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Novelist, film scriptwriter, literary critic, teacher, lecturer, and actor all are among the roles James Dickey has filled. But as far as Dickey himself is concerned his primary job is being a poet.

"Poetry is the center of my creative wheel," Dickey, an amiable 49-year-old who towers 6 feet 4, says. "Everything else is a spinoff. All the other things come out of my poetry at some weird angle."

Dickey, winner of the National Book Award in Poetry for his "Buckdancer's Choice" and currently poet in residence at the University of South Carolina, cites his novel "Deliverance" as an example of poetic spinoff.

"I first thought of it as a long poem that would explore the themes of violence, action and sex," he says. "I wrote on it for a while but got nothing I liked."

"Then I decided that what I had was not poetic material but novel material. So I turned 180 degrees and wrote a novel. Actually, I don't know anything about writing novels. I guess it just was a story that told itself very well."

When it was decided to make the book into a film, Dickey did the screenwriting chore. "I did it in about three months," he says, shaking his head, "and it was tough. Movies are really tough to get all together. What I did was take the book and lay it out on my desk and look at it while trying to figure out what would work in visual images."

Writing the novel and script wasn't the end of Dickey's involvement with "Deliverance." He also has a small part in the film — playing a county sheriff. "It wasn't much," he says with a smile. "I sort of just acted myself."

Dickey began writing poetry while serving overseas during World War II. "I was lonely," he says, "so I read a lot. Then I started writing poetry to relieve my own loneliness. What I wanted to do after all that reading was to see if I couldn't get in there and do some of it myself."

After discharge, he taught English at universities and kept on writing poetry while his reputation slowly grew. "I came up the hardest possible way," he recalls. "By submitting unsolicited manuscripts. I knew no one in publishing so I'd just finish something up, send it off, and hope it would get published."

Dickey, who has published several books of poetry as well as some volumes of criticism, says he currently has "a lot of new stuff" he is working on.

"I've got a new book of poems about half-finished," he says. "It'll be called 'Slowly Toward Hercules.' Then I've got another novel going called 'Ain'tam.' If anyone wants to know what it's about tell them it's about blind men and airplanes. I've also got another book of literary criticism working."

"There's just an awful lot to do."

Seek Arabs . .

petition. They said they were shaken by the killings of the Israelis.

The first two Israelis were killed when the terrorists invaded their quarters at the Olympic Village before dawn Tuesday. Late Tuesday night the Arabs and their nine hostages were taken to Fuerstentfeldbruck military airfield in two helicopters where a Boeing 727 was waiting, ostensibly to fly them to the Middle East. The Arabs said they would free the hostages if Israel released 200 guerrillas jailed in Israel.

But the Interior Ministry said German authorities were convinced that "a flight out of this country would have meant certain death for the athletes." Afterward Premier Golda Meir of Israel expressed approval of the decision to try to kill the terrorists and free the hostages.

The circumstances of the shootout at Fuerstentfeldbruck were still unclear, and the West German government said it was investigating.

The Munich police initially said the first shots were fired by one of the Arabs who reacted hysterically when he saw police waiting at the airfield. But the police later retracted this and said further investigation showed police sharpshooters opened fire when two of the guerrillas showed themselves in an especially favorable position. However, the police said the sharpshooters were unable to knock the two Arabs out of the battle before they got off shots of their own.

The police said the visibility also was very poor — it was about 11 p.m. and the airfield was not illuminated — and the sharpshooters were using telescopic sights to fire at shadows.

Expressions of grief and protests continued abroad.

More than 1,000 persons filed silently through the Israeli Embassy in London to sign a leather-bound book of condolences.

The embassy said scores of men, at least half of them not Jewish, telephoned to volunteer for the Israeli army. All were refused, since the Israelis do not take foreign volunteers into their military.

At London Airport, union leaders of ground crew personnel for Trans World Airlines said the crews would boycott Kuwait Airlines—which TWA handles—for 48 hours to protest the Munich slayings.

Moscow police rounded up 55 Jews who tried to demonstrate outside the Lebanese Embassy. They were questioned and released without being charged. Jewish sources said physicist Andrei Sakharov, developer of the Soviet H-bomb and a leading champion of civil rights, was among those picked up.

Eshelman Gives To College Foundation Fund

The John W. Eshelman and Sons Co., Circleville, was one of 104 business and industrial firms contributing to the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges, Inc. during the first quarter of the 1972-73 fiscal year.

The gift will be shared, 60 per cent equally, 40 per cent according to the 1972 fall enrollment by 36 Ohio Colleges receiving no tax aid for operating funds reports Dr. Carl C. Barcy, executive director of the foundation.

The foundation has distributed over $23 million to its member colleges over the past 21 years.

Circleville, Ohio

KIWANIS SPEAKER — Ashville Kiwanis president elect Charles Morrison (left) presents a certificate of appreciation to Orlan Cooper for his report to the club on the Teays Valley operating levy.

Ashville Kiwanians Hear Reasons For TV School Levy

Orlan Cooper, assistant superintendent of Teays Valley School District, spoke to the Ashville Kiwanis Club Tuesday event.

Cooper explained the need for the operating levy which the Teays Valley School District residents will be voting on Sept. 12.

Among the reasons listed by Cooper were: the low percentage of the total budget for salaries compared to a state department suggestion of 80 to 85 per cent, much needed repairs to district buildings, the state department has attached "strings to much of the money gained by the district from the state income tax."

Visitors for the evening included Charles Hart, Circleville Kiwanis Club, and Benis Lutz, superintendent of Teays Valley Schools.

Don Forquer reported on the progress of the bookshelves being built for the elementary libraries. The first set of shelves should be completed by this weekend.

Charles Morrison announced the meeting next week will be an interclub to the Tri County Kiwanis Club. Members are to meet at the Coffee Shop by 6 p.m.

Kenneth Bartkowiak, an American Airlines security agent, said he noticed Jeusnik's brown violin case Wednesday and asked him what was in it. He said Jeusnik, in broken English, held the case up and said "Instrument."

Officials said a deputy U.S. marshal was called to open the case when Jeusnik refused to open it.

Inside it, they found a 6.5-millimeter rifle with a sawed-off barrel and stock, a round of bullets in the rifle chamber and 41 more rounds in the case.

Officials also found a butcher knife with a seven-inch blade, two jackknives with five-inch blades and a pair of brass knuckles on his person. They found $7,000 cash and a snap-out blackjack in his suitcase.

Jeusnik, who was trying to board a flight to Dallas, Texas, said he was en route to Tucson, Ariz., where he was going to retire.

The retired restaurant porter gave no reason for carrying the weapon when he appeared before a U.S. Magistrate.

Jeusnik told the FBI he is on social security.
